

MARINE LEATHER

OUR STORY

Born in 1930 as a tannery company, it is now at its third generation with the same family name, having been established by Eduardo De Cesare almost a century ago.

Following his father's commitment, his son Vincenzo took the same career and he transformed the company for the modern days, ensuring that everything Marine Leather made would still adhere to the artisanal practices of its origin.

Now it is one of the most well-known businesses on the market mostly thanks to its expertise in the leather-processing techniques that have guaranteed its continued success.

The company remains true to its leather-making heritage, with the focus still firmly placed on innovative craftsmanship. One of the several reasons Marine Leather has such a positive reputation in the industry, besides its passion, is its constant drive towards experimentation.

Nowadays the company is able to create innovative collections that offer a wide range of different textures as well as a myriad of diverse nuances.
